Time Marches On

It was a reasonable turnout for our first meeting of the new year. Good to see Lynn Newman, Bob Fontaine, and Loni Cox. So what did we do??? Russ sang not one but two songs; it's always a treat to hear him work the vocal chords along with the fretboard. Steve brought his octave mandolin (pictured here) that he plays much better than he admits. A phone went off during the meeting; of course, we blamed it on Floyd though it clearly wasn't his phone. After the meeting, Floyd was grinning ear to ear. "My phone did go off, but you didn't hear it, did you?" Nope, sure didn't. "That's 'cuz I had it in my pocket." Which begs the question, where do you normally keep it when we DO hear it? That might be the reason for the big grin...

Who stole the show? The same guy that usually does, Marvin, pictured here to the right. He did "My Way," (think Sinatra, but the American version was written by Paul Anka) warning us that he was going to do it his way, which he certainly did. He also did Roger Miller's "King of the Road" his way, with some lyrics I've never heard before. It was pretty entertaining stuff; all of our meetings are better when Marvin shows up.

Bill Bailey has retired! See the events section for the particulars, as you are invited to the party. And thanks, Rich Ryan, for extra pictures.
